Berry Center, college building legacy

It's not every day that a legacy is made. The words "legacy" and "historic" were used often at St. Catharine Hall on the campus of St. Catharine College on Monday. Trustees, college faculty, students and community members filled the room, as St. Catharine College President William D. Huston announced a partnership between The Berry Center and the college.

The Berry Center, based in New Castle, focuses on issues faced by small-farming families in Kentucky and around the country, according to a news release from St. Catharine College. The vision of The Berry Center comes from the Berry family: John M. Berry Sr., a lawyer and farmer, and his sons, John M. Berry Jr., a farmer and lawyer, and Wendell Berry, a farmer and writer. Wendell Berry is an internationally known author who has written several books and essays on sustainable agriculture, among other things. The National Endowment for the Arts recently announced that Berry would give the 41st Jefferson Lecture in Humanities at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., on April 23. James Spragens, of Lebanon, came to hear the announcement because he is a Berry follower. "I think that he asks a lot of really good questions that most people don't take the time to ask, like, 'Are the things we're doing good for us?'" Spragens said.

Rick Nethery: the 'next Van Hawkins'

BY PHYLLIS MCLAUGHLIN
Special to The Local

History has turned a page for one landmark of the tiny city of Port Royal. Hawkins Farm Center — a local institution since 1964 — is now Rick's Farm Center and Restaurant. Rick and Lisa Nethery of Eminence bought the store from the Hawkins family last month. Sitting in his sparse office, Rick Nethery points through the door to his right. "If you need a bolt, we probably got it," he said, referring to rows and rows of small drawers filled with nuts, bolts and any other hardware one could imagine. Through the door on his left is the other half of the store — the side that truly makes it unusual. Shelves are filled with a variety of farm and yard implements, as well as bird seed, dog food and groceries. In the very back, hot "people" food is served for breakfast and lunch at the store's diner, which is open from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Most of the walls are filled with dozens of frames containing the photos of smiling customers -- local folks who came into the shop over the years. "My picture is already up on the wall," he said. He admits the photos are a big part of what makes the store "a very unique place," but said he doesn't think he'll continue the tradition started by Darlene Hawkins Tipton. Tipton's father, William Van Hawkins, opened the store in 1964, she said. When he died in 2002, she and her siblings shared ownership of the store, honoring his dying wish that it remain in the family. Tipton took over as manager, with the intention of

Laughter, family atmosphere keys to long tenures

In 2008, the average length of time a person was projected to spend at a single job was about four years. At United Citizens Bank in Campbellsburg, four employees have bounced that statistic. Jerry Brent, Sue Nelson, Mary Helen Simpson and Betty Tingle, all of Campbellsburg, each have more than 40 years with the bank, and together total 189 years of service. Naturally, through the years, the four have seen a variety of changes and endured the aftermath of a tornado together. "When I started here, we did just about everything," Simpson said. The most senior of the group, Simpson, 78, has been with the bank for 55 years. When she started with the bank, employees did a little bit of everything, from posting deposits, making statements, waiting on customers, alphabetizing checks, and drafting "what we called the foreign letter to send into Citizens Fidelity." Oh, and everything was posted on a paper ledger. Brent, 70, has been with the bank for 49 years, and echoed the sentiment, saying that while each employee could do one another's job, each person did specialize in something. He came to the bank out of college, in part because he thought he would enjoy banking as a career. "I've enjoyed it a lot, tremendously, all these years," he said. "There's been some, as one might expect... we've had some rough spots as well as good times, but for the most part they've been good times." Through good and bad, each person said, the UCB staff worked as a team. And that team spirit

Signs, signs everywhere illegal signs

BY JONNA SPELBRING PRIESTER
Publisher

When he helps set up the monthly fiscal court meetings in the Henry County Courthouse, Planning and Zoning Administrator Jody Rucker sets out microphones to help amplify discussion at the table for the audience. Last week, he also set up roughly a dozen signs, ranging from real estate placards to an advertisement for a Trimble County winery. Some were in relatively good condition; some not so much. Each sign was found at, and obviously removed from, roadways around the Campbellsburg exit off of I-71. One, he said, was even pulled from the side of the interstate itself. Why? Because they're technically illegal — under both state law and county planning and zoning regulations. "Every one of these signs, according to our ordinance, is illegal," Rucker told members of the fiscal court. "Basically, they're all advertising signs, and nobody has gotten permits for them." Even if the owners of the signs had obtained permits, the signs were illegally placed on state rights of way, which could extend from the center of the roadway or from a ditch to the side of the roadway, and then vary depending on the terrain around the road. "It could be 30 feet from the center of the road... or it might be 10 feet or 20 feet," Rucker said. But even if the signs were placed in the right spots, there were no permits for them, and that too is illegal. "Any sign has to have a permit, other than a sign that advertises a special event, a temporary real estate sign, that sort of thing," Rucker said. "A lot of these signs aren't even from businesses within our community. They're unsightly." What makes the signs he presented different from, say, yard sale signs is that yard sale signs are temporary. And typically, a real estate sign advertising a house is allowed to be placed in front of the house, though some are placed strategically at intersections near the house being sold. Even then, they tend to not be left up for long periods.

Not your conventional ‘Big R’

Well, it finally happened! The time of the big “R”, better known as retirement, arrived. For 10, 20 and sometimes more than 30 years, we work and work; waiting until the day arrives when we can finally retire. We envision all sorts of things we will do when we actually retire and have time to do them. Things like going on cruises, visiting the national parks, traveling, visiting family and friends more often, starting a new hobby, etc. The retirement years equate with the golden years in our society. But is that reality?

While I can’t answer the

CANDY clark

Guest Columnist

question for anyone else I’m going to do my best to find out if the retirement years are really the golden years. I sure hope so. I figure I have put in my time with the work force (sometimes working two jobs); I’ve raised my children, cared for my pets, and tried to always follow the Golden Rule. Now, it’s time for me to explore some of the paths I passed by while being a mother, wife, and a productive member of the work force.

I feel compelled to warn you, though, my path since retirement hasn’t resembled the “conventional Golden Years.” My retired friends dream of the cruise(s) they will take. Those nearing retirement surround themselves with travel brochures. What do I do? Together, my husband, Frank, and I decide to build a house in Kentucky. Henry County, Ky., to be precise. Mind you, I said we decided to build a house; not that we would have one built. Sound crazy to you? Well, you are beginning to get the picture.

A week after Frank’s retirement, we left our home in North Pole, Alaska, and headed south to Kentucky. With much hard work, and the assistance of a kind-hearted nephew, who put his life on hold to help us, the house was under roof within months. Under roof - not finished. Next came the plumbing and electric. These were biggies for me! Yes, I admit it; I’m spoiled. I know there are millions of people in this world who live without running water and electric, but I like having running water and electric, televisions and phones are nice too.

So, I guess you, the reader, have already figured out that something is not quiet right. If we have spent most of our retirement savings on getting a house in Kentucky; what’s left to spend on the travel and/or hobbies? You would be right to question the wisdom of the situation. We, also, have wondered how we are going to fulfill those other retirement dreams.

Well, to be quiet honest, we haven’t figured everything out yet. Short of finding a goose that will lay a golden egg for us, we’ll just have to get creative and find some solutions. For now, we’re really having too much fun being in Kentucky to fret about it. Being retired and being in Henry County, Ky., feels mighty fine.

GUEST COMMENTARY

More accountability is needed at Pleasureville City Hall

Articles that have recently been published in your newspaper about the Pleasureville City Commission have been very one-sided. Those same articles have appeared to be making a joke out of the serious problems that have occurred and continue to occur within Pleasureville city government.

Since the Henry County Local has not deemed it necessary to contact me for any actual facts or information concerning this very serious problem, as a city commissioner and life-long resident of Pleasureville, I have an obligation to inform the citizens of Pleasureville of the actual facts regarding the absence of accountability to the taxpayers of our city.

The initial incident that started this controversy was the request of the city clerk seeking a $350 per month salary increase due to the fact that her health insurance was canceled because of her eligibility for Medicare. I voted no for this because, in my opinion, it was not right, nor feasible, to give her a $4,200 per year raise. Upon investigation, it was discovered that our city clerk had been overpaid for the year, per city ordinance 2009-01. This ordinance states that her maximum yearly salary shall be no more than $25,000. In 2008, her salary was $26,277.88. In 2009, her salary was $27,153.40. In 2010, her salary was $27,168.40. In three years’ time, she was overpaid $5,599.68.

In the next city commission meeting, I reported this flagrant violation of the city ordinance to the entire city commission. After discussion, city attorney Bill Brammell informed the commission they had two options. Amend the salary ordinance or amend the city clerk’s pay, because we were in violation of our own city ordinance.

Upon further investigation, I discovered that if Verna Stivers had not paid herself for 160 hours of vacation time each December of these three years, she would not have exceeded the maximum salary limit. I questioned this payment of all her vacation time at the end of those three years, because she used three of her vacation days on a trip to Tennessee with me in 2008. She saw fit to pay herself for all her days for that year. I just proved that she took days off that weren’t recorded.

After this discrepancy was discovered, I requested her time and attendance, and payroll records. She advised me and the entire city commission that she had no time and attendance records of any kind, other than a ledger that shows gross pay, social security, Medicare, federal and state withholding, retirement, and net pay.

Several years ago, I advised our city clerk, for her own benefit and taxpayer accountability that she needed to keep a daily time sheet. This document would be a record for her time in, time out, total hours worked per her two-week pay period. This time sheet should also reflect sick and vacation hours used for that period. It should be signed by the city clerk and the mayor. These records are legal documents and should be kept in the city clerk’s office. I explained to Verna that even though she had been in this job for many years, with no records, these documents are extremely necessary for accountability to the taxpayers. At this time, I also explained that it was for her benefit to keep records of how many sick and vacation days that she had accumulated and used.

At this point, I prepared a time sheet for Verna and requested that she begin using it immediately. She assured me she would do so. I saw no reason to doubt her word, or feel the need to go back and examine her payroll records. This was not only our long-term city clerk, this was also my very close friend. Verna was on sick leave for several months in 2011. She was paid for the entire time. She admits that she doesn’t know how many hours she has. Is it right for the mayor to pay her each pay period for all those months without truly knowing if she had enough hours to cover those many weeks or discussing it with the city commission?

After attorney Brammell got a letter from the state auditor’s office, voicing my concerns, Mr. Brammell did an investigation and reported back to the state auditor’s office. Mr. Brammell reported that no time sheets or other records of time worked or sick leave were available with the exception of a calendar upon which the city clerk made notations as to days present and days off for illness or otherwise. Specific hours of work are not noted and calendars for years prior to 2011 had been disposed of. The calendar evidences that there were a number of days off for illness which exceeded the allowed amount under the policies and procedures that the clerk was paid for all those days she had been absent for work. This is another instance of violation of city ordinances.

After all the controversy and discrepancies that have been uncovered, I cannot believe that on the December financial statement that Verna had seen fit to pay not only herself, but also Pleasureville Fire Chief Denny Washburn a $300 bonus check. These checks were signed by Mayor Rodney Young, but according to both Mayor Young and Verna Stivers, no one requested her to write these checks. According to city ordinance 2009-01 “the city may, in its discretion, and based upon merit, provide for a bonus for any city employee not to exceed $500 per year.” The same ordinance also states that the Pleasureville fire chief may be compensated at the discretion of the city commission.

Our mayor personally told me that he did not authorize the city clerk to write those checks. If this were the case, why did he sign them? This was never brought before the city commission for either a discussion or a vote. This is another flagrant violation of our city ordinances.

During the February city commissioners meeting, I asked Mr. Brammell if Mayor Young had the authority to sign those checks. Attorney Brammell said he did not.

Why did Verna Stivers see fit to pay the city back $268.89 of the $300 bonus check she had written herself? Why should taxpayers have to pay the $31.11 in taxes on the $300 bonus check that should never have been written or signed?

This was never a personal vendetta against anyone. This is simply the difference between doing what is right and doing what is wrong. There is no in between, and I find it very hard to believe that our city commission, mayor, and city clerk for many years, think that it is perfectly okay to spend taxpayer money any way they choose.

I have been asked what I hoped to achieve from all this. First of all, I think Verna Stivers needs to make restitution to the city for all monies overpaid per our ordinance, instead of seeking a $4,200 yearly raise.

Secondly, Mayor Young needs to be held accountable to the city commission and taxpayers as stated in KRS 83A.140 Commission Plan.

I would like to see our tax dollars used more wisely. Also, I would like to see our citizens feel they are not only welcome, but needed at our monthly meetings. Residents’ input and concerns do matter in maintaining the quality and accountability of city government.

I personally invite you to the next city commission meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, March 5, at Pleasureville City Hall.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Nick Hawkins for Henry County Circuit Clerk

I am excited to announce my candidacy for the office of Henry County circuit clerk. I am immensely grateful and humbled to have served our county as the 4th District magistrate over the last five years.

I am a proud husband to Aimee, and father to two young men: Axel, 8, and Wyatt, 6. I am a lifelong resident of Henry County, raised in Port Royal and graduated from Henry County High School. Soon after Aimee and I were married, we moved to New Castle, where we reside today.

Aimee is a nurse’s assistant at Homestead Nursing Center. I have worked as an AT&T communications technician in our community for the last 12 years. Our sons work hard at keeping us on our toes. We are members of the New Castle First Baptist Church.

In addition to serving on fiscal court as a magistrate, I have worked to serve our community in numerous volunteer roles. I am an active member of the New Castle Lions Club, where I have served as president and director of vision assistance. I also serve as the commissioner of the New Castle T-Ball League, and served as a Henry County Youth League football coach for eight years.

Devotion to volunteering in our community and trying to make a positive difference are an important part of my life, as I am forever grateful to the many people who have served our county as coaches, teachers and mentors, instilling in me the values of hard work, service and community.

As one of six magistrates in our county, I strive to be a strong voice for residents. Serving our community on fiscal court has been one of the great honors of my life. I feel that we have achieved many noteworthy accomplishments over the last few years, most notably the development of the new county park, which includes a youth football field, several soccer fields for the youth league and middle school, a public walking trail, and a public pond for families to enjoy fishing together.

Through one of the most difficult economic periods in American history, we have worked together to improve county services while striving to be good stewards of your tax dollars. I feel that we have worked hard to make Henry County a better place for our children and grandchildren.

Most people aren’t exposed to the circuit clerk’s office until you end up with jury duty or have to get your driver’s license renewed. However the circuit clerk’s job is one of great responsibility, as the circuit clerk is accountable for managing a large amount of state depository funds, scheduling court cases, and managing the records of our county’s entire judicial system.

By serving as your next circuit clerk, I hope to take my experiences and put them to work for you. If elected, I plan to work through the Kentucky Circuit Clerks Association and use my experience in the communications industry to help incorporate a broader use of technology into the court system, making it more responsive to the needs of residents, while operating at a more cost-efficient level for the taxpayers.

I feel that the combination of my experiences has given me a broad mix of knowledge and skills that will enable me to be an effective leader as your next circuit clerk.

In closing I want you know I am an honest and dependable person. You can count on me to go to work every day, knowing that you have entrusted me with a great responsibility. I can assure you that I will be the first person to show up to work each morning at the courthouse and the last person to leave at the end of each day. Henry County is a remarkable place, full of great people, and I am proud to have called it my home for my entire life.

Please allow me the honor of serving you as your next Henry County circuit clerk. Over the coming months I will be out knocking on doors across our county and will do my best to make it to every house in Henry County to ask you personally for your support. I look forward to hearing from you and discussing my plans for the future of the circuit clerk’s office.

If you would like to discuss any issues or have any comments, please call me anytime on my cell phone at: 706-1237.

Nick Hawkins

Spragens said he also came because he thought it was a very historic occasion.

Huston described a courtship that occurred between St. Catharine College and The Berry Center, which ended in the beginning of a program, and, he said, a legacy.

The president referred to an old adage during his address, ‘Many are interested, many are called and few are chosen.’

“Well, we feel like the chosen one today,” Huston said. “The one that’s going to have the opportunity to take the dreams and the vision of Wendell Berry, the philosophy of The Berry Center, the guiding principles, and to incorporate that into the principles that are taught every day at St. Catharine College.”

Mary Berry-Smith, Wendell Berry’s daughter and co-owner of Smith-Berry Winery, represented The Berry Center during

Mary Berry-Smith
The Berry Center

responsibility to students,” she said. “So, this is the perfect place.”

Trying to implement the program at larger school would be like “trying to turn a battleship in the Kentucky River.”

As far as the Berry family can tell, she said, “what we’re doing here does not exist anywhere else.”

“My father says, ‘If we can do what we have in mind here, the world will beat a path to the door of St. Catharine, because it hasn’t been done anywhere else,’” she said. “I think he’s right. I almost always think he’s right.”

Huston said he thinks having an operational farm didn’t hurt, either.

Dr. Don Giles, the vice president for academic affairs at St. Catharine College, agreed.

Giles said the new program would contain two or three tracks.

One, he said, would be a degree in small farming.

Huston described it as a degree in sustainable agriculture with Wendell Berry’s philosophy woven through it.

The other possibility for potential students is a track that examines Wendell Berry’s philosophy of coexisting with farmers in the community.

“Let’s say I want to be on the city council,” Giles said. “I might not even be interested in farming, but I want to understand farmers and the role the farm plays, and how that works with the town, and how we support some sort of relationship between the local farms and the town.”

Giles said down the road there could be a track for literature and philosophy.

“Kind of the larger perspective and understanding of what the implications of this are, or what Berry’s philosophy is, for the human race and the world itself, the Earth, the people and the planet, the populations of animals, everything that’s living here,” Giles said.

The possibilities of a graduate degree or doctoral program aren’t out of the realm of possibility, he said.

Giles said the program could bring more buildings to campus, as well.

“We might end up with another building or two,” he said. “A barn for the Berry program, maybe another building that is a Berry program center. It could have its own library, perhaps, as a result.”

Giles said students could possibly begin classes in the program as early as August 2013.

Joe Kelly, the chairman of the board of trustees at St. Catharine College, reflected on the occasion during the press conference.

“We will not know, most of us here, I don’t think, will ever know, the importance of this occasion and what this relationship is going to mean to hundreds and thousands, and who knows how many more, who will benefit from this partnership,” he said.

In an interview last week, Huston said the new program could elevate St. Catharine College.

“This could be the legacy that really establishes St. Catharine College,” he said.

Giles said the partnership is a good fit because of shared beliefs.

“When we started talking to Wendell and his family, The Berry Center, it’s like, ‘This is kind of who we are already,’” Giles said. “We have embedded some of the Dominican pillars into programs and how we operate, but this can be, again, kind of a centerpiece and a way to pull all it together in a way that it enhances what we’re doing already, but can make it more vital.”

The real work, Huston said, is about to begin.

“The easy part is behind us, and we have to now develop and implement the dreams of Wendell Berry and The Berry Center,” he said.

JONNA SPELBRING PRIESTER/LOCAL

Planning and Zoning Administrator Jody Rucker brought these signs to the Henry County Fiscal Court meeting as a sample of signs that he says are illegally placed along roadways.

SIGNS

ods of time, and under the planning and zoning ordinance, only one sign may be allowed depending on the size of the property.

But some of the signs Rucker presented to the fiscal court had been up for months. Rucker simply wanted to know exactly what the court wanted him to do: simply remove the signs, or cite the owners for violating the county ordinance.

Magistrate Roger Hartlage expressed concern about citing signs’ owners as being unfriendly to businesses. “We are trying to be a business-friendly county,” he said. “What happens (would be) Jody comes, cites them. Really, when you get that, it feels like you’re being targeted, and it’s not really a business-friendly county.”

“Maybe the ordinance needs to be loosened up.”

But Rucker said that would undo the spirit of the ordinance.

According to the planning and zoning ordinance section regarding signs, the section “is intended to protect property values, create a more attractive economie and business climate, enhance and protect the physical appearance of the community and preserve the historic quality and natural beauty of designated areas.

The setback requirements, however, are tricky. “... all signs permitted under this ordinance shall be setback from the established right-of-way of any street or highway at least one-half of the distance of the established front yard setback or side yard setback, as the case may be, established for the district wheresaid sign is located.”

One thing Rucker said he would like to do is amend the ordinance so that the distance is measured from the center of the road on any road in the county. “That way it won’t matter... any kind of road you’re on measures from the center, so there’s no doubt where (the right of way) should be,” he said.

Sign permits are $20 for anything less than 12 square feet, and then a $20 base fee for anything over 12 feet, with an additional 50-cents per square foot.

would be put to the test in 1974 when a tornado tore the city apart.

Brent and Simpson also remembered the only bank robbery the Campbellsburg bank ever experienced.

Brent said it happened roughly in 1965, and took place during the night. “This was in the days before the alarm system, and they pounded through a four-brick thick wall in order to access the area where the lock boxes were,” he said. To the bank’s knowledge, the over-night raiders, one of whom was caught in Indianapolis a year later, didn’t get away with much.

Tingle, 72, joined the bank’s staff in 1972, just two years before the tornado struck. “The tornado wiped this bank out,” she said. Brent said that the tornado “blew away” a mobile home the bank had been operating out of, and the staff moved operations into a doublewide.

Employees had to wade through water to get to the bank’s vault — which stayed put despite the tornado’s winds — to transfer personal documents each morning and night. “(The tornado) blew the roof off of the bank, so we walked through water all winter long,” he said.

“We actually grew the bank while we were in that doublewide. We had 9 employees, plus the customers, all in it.

“It was cramped, but we survived.”

Cramped indeed. Nelson, who is 71 and has been with the bank 45 years, said there were three posting machines in one small bedroom. “With all three of them going, it was deafening,” she said.

Paper was filed in a bathroom that wasn’t usable for that purpose, as there was no functioning plumbing ing as a bookkeeper and teller in New Castle, and then became a floater. “I love it, I like seeing all of the different people,” she said. Of the group, only Nelson is still a full-time employee.

For each member of the group, working at the bank was equated to working with a family. Simpson came to the bank after working at a Louisville bank for six years, even though she lived “right down the street,” from the Campbellsburg bank.

Nelson joined the staff when two of her children were in school. “I came just for a couple of years to get us on our feet, and I’ve been here ever since,” she said.

With children in Henry County Public Schools, Tingle decided that working for United Citizens was a smart move for her. “It was close to them in case they needed me, and I’ve been here ever since.”

More than their reasons for coming, the group shared a common reason for staying.

“It’s always been a good place to work,” Tingle said. “We’ve always had good people to work with and work for.”

Simpson said that working in the larger bank in Louisville, “you were only connected to the small group in your department.” The atmosphere in the smaller bank was different.

“I can truthfully say that I always look forward to coming to work,” Brent said. “It’s not something that I dislike, or unfortunately like other people, have to endure. As my cohorts indicated, it is my family.”

Key to the familial feeling, is making a point to have a little fun. Whether it was a funny word of the day, or telling funny stories about favorite memories, the group makes it a point to laugh.

But when asked to share a funny story, the group gets quiet... though they giggle softly. But Tingle offered up a favorite memory of Brent. “I remember a funny story about Jerry...” she said. “We were doing the checks (one day)... and this person wanted a credit reference. Jerry gave them a glowing credit reference, and they asked who was speaking. He said the janitor.

“He’s a case,” she said, laughing.

Brent shrugged. “If you can’t enjoy your work, and the people you work with.... sometimes, I’ve had to induce laughter.”

Even with the longevity they’ve enjoyed at the bank, none of the four thought they’d stay with the bank a particularly long time. But then, they didn’t necessarily think that they wouldn’t, either.

“I never gave it any thought,” Simpson said.

Look out! Duggins is a teenager today

Leap Year birthday is cool for Campbellsburg resident

Publisher

Look out world, Vicki Duggins is a teenager. No, really, today is, technically speaking, Duggins' 13th birthday... even though she was born 52 years ago.

"I just always thought it was kind of neat," Duggins said of having a Leap Day birthday. "Even as an adult, people will come out and say 'How old are you going to be this year?"

"I'm going to be 13 this year, you better look out!"

For the Campbellsburg resident and La Grange Post Office employee, having a Leap Day birthday was more fun than anything else, even though she only got to celebrate her actual birth date once every four years.

"I always thought it was kind of cool," she said. "It set me apart from the rest of the crowd."

In school, other children thought it was cool, too, telling Duggins they wished they had a Leap

PETER CRAWFORD/FOR THE LOCAL

Campbellsburg resident Vicki Duggins will celebrate her 13th Leap Day birthday today.

Day birthday as well. But if doctors and nurses had had their way, she might not have had the unique birthday. "Dad always told me the nurses and doctors tried to talk him out of having (me) on that day," Duggins said. "Don't saddle her with that birthday her whole life, she'll hate you for it." My dad said 'Nope, her birthday is Feb. 29.'"

Contrary to what those nurses and doctors thought, Duggins never hated it, in fact, "it's always been fun."

She even jokes about her various milestones.

For her fourth birthday, she got her driver's license. By her fifth birthday, she was already married. "People really tease my husband that (he's) really robbing the cradle," she laughed.

By her sixth birthday, she had had her first child, Michael. And by her seventh birthday, she'd had her second son. She and her husband Michael welcomed their third child, Hannah, when Duggins was 9.

In reality, Duggins' husband is just two years older; and their son Michael was actually born when Duggins was 22.

"We've had a lot of fun out of (my birthday) over the years," she said. That, she added, doesn't necessarily mean throwing a whacky birthday party, it means more joking about her "real" age. "I've had a lot of fun out of Hannah's classmates at school," Duggins said. "I'd look at them and say 'I'm only 12!' They'd look at me... and their mouths would drop open."

Duggins' father, John McIntosh, said the family would always pick a day close to Duggins' birthday. "I always told them, this year, you've got to celebrate right between Feb. 28 and March 1, that split second," he said, laughing. "It works out great. It's kind of a novelty, and is a lot of fun."

staying there only a couple years, she said. A couple of years turned into 10, and when her brothers and sisters decided it might be time to sell the store, she was ready.

Tipton said shortly after they made the decision, she ran into Nethery at Browning's during a customer appreciation event. That's when she learned that Nethery – after years of managing the Miles Farm Store in Shelbyville and Southern States in Eminence before that – was in need of a job.

"I said, 'You need to run the store. You'd be perfect for it,'" she recalls. "It took him a year to make that choice."

She said he told her he was trying to move in another direction. After all, he'd spent most of his life working in farm stores.

But fate intervened, and he and his wife decided to go for it. "I told my kids I thought maybe I had one more store in me."

Nethery said he's found owning his own business to be "a really big transition," but Tipton knows the right man is running her dad's store.

"He has really fallen into it. ... I think he'll do wonderful," she said. "We tease him that he even looks like dad."

Upon turning over the keys to Nethery (and, of course, she has a picture of it on Facebook), "I just said, 'You are the next William Van Hawkins.'"

Nethery said he plans to begin selling bulk fertilizer and chemicals, which haven't been sold there for a few years.

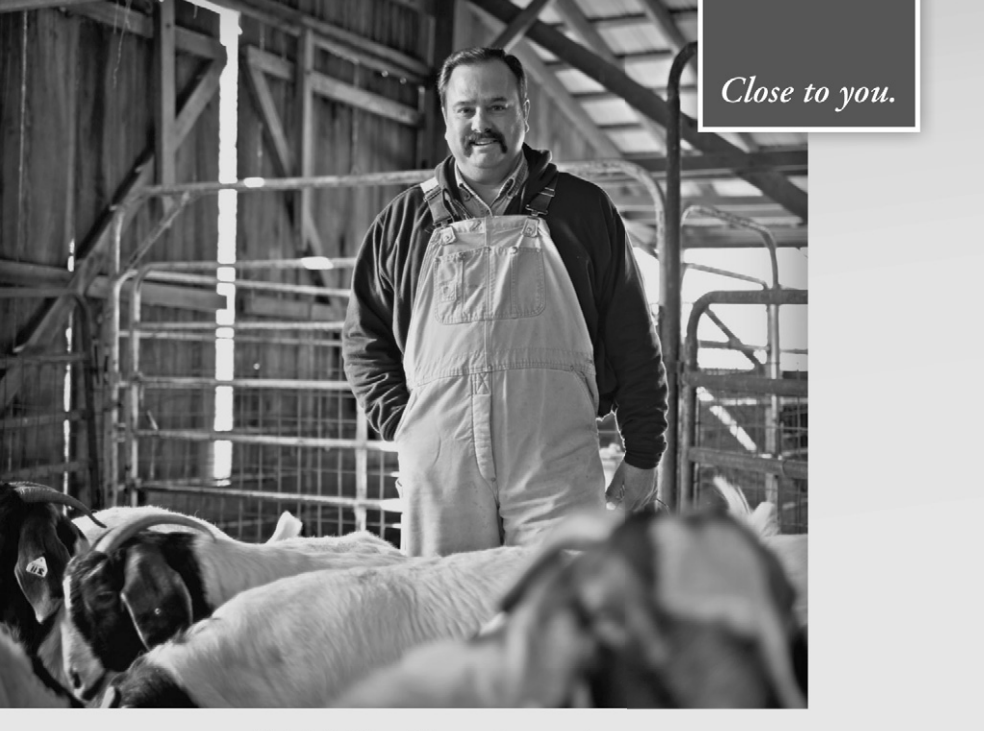

"It will be a full-service farm supply store," he said.

20 tips for a stronger pocketbook

Losing track of where your money is going?

The majority of people don't accurately track their purchases and are confused when their expenses exceed their income. In order to better track your spending habits, start an envelope system. Put the cash amount you should spend on transportation, food, entertainment, etc., into separate envelopes each month. This hands-on budget can help you to avoid buying things you don't need (and if there is anything left, put it into savings!).

Having a hard time deciding what items are worth the money?

When faced with a purchasing dilemma try this: Take the cost of the item and divided it by your hourly wage. For example, if a purse costs $50 and you make $10 an hour, think about whether or not the purse is worth 5 hours of work. Using this perspective makes decision-making a bit easier.

If you want to grow your savings account or emergency fund, think short term, not long term!

Instead of setting a long-term goal of saving $200 a year, plan on short-term goals like putting aside $20 a month. People save more money when they focus on

University of Kentucky – College of Agriculture

Family and Consumer Sciences

Maryellen Garrison
Henry County Extension Office

short-term goals.

Go viral and try shopping online.

You can save money by buying items in bulk online. Many websites offer free shipping on large orders. Also, most websites have a savings section with clearance and discounted items, including many nonperishable groceries and diapers. This saves time and money!

Brown-bag your lunch and save!

If buying lunch at work costs $5, but making lunch at home costs only $2.50, then in a year, you could save up to $500. This money could be a great addition to an emergency savings fund, and it's better on your waistline, too.

Dine in more

Try to cut out dinner at a restaurant by at least once a month. If it costs you $25 to eat out, but only $5 to eat in, then the $20 you save each month allows you to almost completely fund a $500 emergency savings account.

Go Generic

Instead of paying for brand-name medicine, purchase store-brand, over-the-counter medications. Store-brand medications often cost 20-40 percent less than nationally-advertised brands. These savings could easily exceed $100 a year.

Don't get charged for withdrawals at ATMs

Only use ATMs at your bank or credit union when possible. When using ATMs at other institutions, you could pay $3 extra for each withdrawal, which could add up to more than $150 a year.

How much life insurance coverage do you need?

If your children are out of the house, or if your spouse works, you may not need as much life insurance protection. Consider purchasing term life insurance, instead of a whole life insurance policy. The savings in annual premiums could fully fund an emergency savings account.

Shop around for auto

and homeowners' insurance

Before renewing your existing policies each year, you should check out the rates of competing companies. Look for companies that offer discounts for multiple policies, such as combining your car and home policies.

Guilty of putting the pedal to the metal?

When driving, you should avoid fast start-ups and stops. Aggressive driving can lower your highway gas mileage by 33 percent. Avoid high speeds, rapid acceleration, and hard braking.

Planning a vacation?

Before you travel, take the time to search for cheaper fares. Try visiting individual discount websites, as well as individual airline websites, as you comparison shop. No single website lists all discounted flights. Searching for the best deal on airfare could save you hundreds of dollars.

Dread that long commute to work?

Live near your workplace if possible. Driving 5,000 miles less a year can lower transportation costs by more than $1,000. Don't underestimate the cost savings from carpooling, check with your employer about company carpool programs.

Choose home repair

contractors wisely

Listen to reviews and hire those contractors who have successfully performed work for people you know. Make sure you get a written, fixed-price bid. Also don't make your final payment until the work is completed to your satisfaction.

Is your energy bill accurate?

Ask your local electric or gas utility service for a free or low-cost home energy audit. The audit may reveal inexpensive ways to reduce home heating and cooling costs by hundreds of dollars a year. Keep in mind that if a purchase will pay for itself in three to five years, usually it will save you lots of money in the longterm.

Weatherproof your home

Caulking holes and cracks in your home can help prevent the escape of warm air in the winter and cold air in the summer. Your local hardware store should have materials, and quite possibly useful advice, about inexpensively stopping unwanted heating or cooling losses.

Avoid the dry cleaner

Set aside time each week to wash and iron clothes yourself. If you must use a cleaner, compare prices at different establishments. A 50-cent difference in cleaning a shirt can add up to $100 a year.

Are you paying too much to communicate?

As the use of internet and wireless services grows, consumers tend to pay more for communications capacity that they don't use. For example, if you have a cell phone and a home phone line, consider receiving personal calls on your cell phone instead, or consider cutting back on unused services that are seldom used, such as call waiting.

Get a library card

If you are a "book worm," instead of buying new books, borrow books from your local library. Borrowing books and reading magazines at the library, rather than purchasing reading material, can save you hundreds of dollars a year. Also, start a book swap with friends and family using books you already own.

Meeting with friends or family?

Instead of dining out at restaurants, socialize over "pot-luck" meals. This will save everyone money and can be a lot more fun.

Interested in dipping into aquaculture? Check out this KSU seminar

For those interested in dipping their toes into aquaculture, an aquaculture basics workshop will be held on Saturday, March 10 at the KSU Aquaculture Research Center in Frankfort.

Welcome and sign-in will begin at 8:15 a.m., and presentations will start at 8:30 and continue until noon.

Farmers, pond owners and land owners are encouraged to attend if they have any interest in starting an aquaculture enterprise. This will be a good, basic overview for those who are not likely to be familiar with aquaculture.

Speakers will include Dr. Bill Wurts; Forrest Wynne and Dr. Bob Durborow. WWurts will speak about fundamental stocking and feeding practices for the types of aquaculture that can be practiced in Kentucky, as well as the basic aspects of water quality that are critical for pond management. Wynne will give a basic overview of the various aquaculture production systems, including pond site selection and construction with brief looks at watershed and levee style ponds. Durborow will discuss the species that are suitable for Kentucky aquaculture. Durborow often steers people in the direction of catfish, largemouth bass or tilapia culture where the first two are raised in open ponds while tilapia are raised in cages.

KSU Extension will also offer an aquatic plant and algae-control training program from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday, March 9, at the same location. Discussion topics will include aquatic plant and algae identification, methods of control and herbicide and algicide use. The program will emphasize proper chemical selection and application techniques, applicator safety and recordkeeping.

Contact the Henry County Extension Office at 845-2811 for further details.

One acre at a time

Interested in learning more about your woodland? Then we hope you can join us at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 27, for a program designed especially for you. "One Acre

At A Time: A Kentucky Woodland Owner Seminar," will discuss woodland health, wildlife, timber sales, working with consulting foresters and biologists.

We request advance signups for the program by contacting the Henry County Extension Office at 845-2811.

Grass-finished beef

Can this region successfully finish beef with less dependence on grain? That will be a major topic of discussion at a pasture finished beef seminar to be held in April. Time and place is to be determined, but we wanted to get you thinking about your possible future in the beef industry supplying meat for the local region. We'll get more information to you as we get the details finalized.

CATS' SEASONS COME TO AN END

Lady Cats give Owen County a run for the money in 41-33 loss

Gilley's girls work through full-court press, hold Gayheart to 7 points

BY GREG WOODS
For the Local

On paper, it wasn't really going to be a contest.

Coming into the second round of the 31st District tournament, the Henry County Lady Cats couldn't have been faulted for thinking they had a huge mountain to climb.

Many saw the game as a formality for the highly ranked Owen County Lady Rebels.

Based on records, rankings and previous matchups between the two teams, it seemed likely that a Lady Rebels rout was in the making.

But the Lady Cats had other ideas — and they made the Lady Rebels earn a tough 41-33 victory that was much closer than the final score indicated.

The Lady Cats came onto the court with a defensive game plan aimed at holding Owen County star Rianna Gayheart in check. The plan worked, as the Cats held her to 7 points on the night.

But in the end, the savvy senior from Owen County controlled the game at key moments. Though she finished with only seven points, she controlled the tempo and hit key free throws down the stretch.

The first quarter started slowly for both teams as Owen edged out to a 6-3 lead with 3:41 remaining in the quarter. After McKenzie Clifford hit a 17-footer at 2:30, it looked like it was game on as the Cats trailed by only one point. But Owen closed the quarter on a 7-0 streak to lead 12-5.

The Cats came roaring back in the second quarter with their trademark half-court defensive game firing on all cylinders. The Cats held Owen to 4 points in the period and scored 9 themselves.

The quarter featured a 9-0 run by the Lady Cats after falling behind 16-6.

Key for the Cats was their ability to follow the defensive game plan, which included mixing man-to-man defense with a variety of "junk" defenses designed to keep Gayheart and the Lady Rebels' other top scorers from getting shots. Gayheart managed just 2 points in the period. At halftime Owen County led narrowly, 16-14.

At halftime the Lady Cats fans were buzzing with excitement as it appeared the underdogs had a chance to pull off an upset. And then the third quarter happened. Owen County came out hot to start the second half and immediately went on a 9-0 run to go up 25-14. Colleen Coomes finally stopped the streak with a shot in the paint with 4:05 remaining in the quarter. On Henry County's next possession, Clifford hit a 3-pointer to reduce the margin to 26-19.

But the Cats managed just 1 more point the remainder of the quarter as Owen stretched the lead to 33-20, closing out the period on a 7-1 run. Madison Gamble and Hannah Neeley did most of the damage as the Cats continued to focus on Gayheart. The two combined for 14 of Owen County's 17 points in the quarter.

Cats give their all in 60-58 loss to Gallatin County

Seniors put it all on the line, hang tough with Gallatin

BY GREG WOODS
For the Local

There is an old adage in basketball that says it is hard to beat a team three times in one season when they are evenly matched.

The Gallatin County Wildcats learned that lesson last week, facing the Henry County Wildcats for the third time, ending Henry County's season in a nail-biter 60-58 win in the 31st District tournament.

It was a tough loss for Henry's four seniors: Austin Dunn, Jake Hartlage, Jared Payton and Austyn Sailings. The pain of the loss was written on their faces as they left the floor with their teammates.

Hartlage in particular, couldn't contain his emotions after fighting throughout the night to keep his team in the game. For the diminutive point guard, it was another strong performance, albeit, in a losing cause.

"Jake put us on his back, as he does every night," Henry head coach Enoch Welch said. "He is just a warrior. He gives everything on every play, every night. Whatever he does, he does 100 percent."

"Austin Dunn has a tremendous work ethic. He comes in at 7 a.m. in the morning to do extra work. That rubs off on the younger players. He realizes you get out of it what you put into it."

"Jared Payton is one of those guys — nice kid, quality person, in basketball that doesn't change. He is a good teammate who played all five positions and did whatever we needed him to do."

Henry County's Austin Dunn makes a move to the basket splitting two Gallatin County defenders.

"Austyn Sailings has had big-point games for us, but he was our lockdown-defender. He got the toughest defensive assignments every night and he never balked at the challenge."

Welch had more praise for the seniors, who endured not just one coaching change during their high school careers; they endured three of them.

"These four seniors have been critical to keeping Henry County basketball at a high level," Welch said. "They've had to endure three coaching changes. If ever there was a group who didn't deserve that, this was the group. This group embodies the phrase 'tradition never graduates' and they have passed it down to our underclassmen; and we will continue to be successful because of it."

Coming into Thursday night's game, the Cats had lost both regular season games to Gallatin. In December, Gallatin won 65-60 in overtime; In January, Gallatin won again, this time a close 66-56.

Thursday night's game at Owen County was tight from the opening tip as each team played patiently on offense, probing for openings in the defense.

Guards figured prominently for both teams, but Henry County also benefited from the strong inside game of Derek Jeffries. The Cats were able to get 6 points from the big man in the first 5 minutes of the game.

It was Jeffries shot in the paint that

The quarter seemed to take the buzz out of the Henry County faithful as the 13-point margin seemed to be too large a lead for their offense-starved team to overcome.

Gilley's girls would have none of that, however, as they came storming back again. The Cats opened the quarter with a 12-2 run that cut the lead to 3 points at 35-32 with 3:06 remaining in the game. Despite struggling with Owen County's full-court press and falling behind by double digits twice in the game, the Lady Cats still had a chance.

After an Owen County timeout, the Lady Rebels brought the ball down court and spread their offense, intent on making the Lady Cats chase the ball and the game. After burning about 50 seconds off the clock, the Lady Rebels got an open look... and missed.

Henry County hauled down the rebound, but Owen County's pressure was too much and Henry turned the ball over with 2:07 remaining.

At this point the question was whether or not the Cats could keep Gayheart and the Rebels from killing the clock. The Cats' Megan Payton stopped the clock when she was whistled for her fifth foul at 1:45.

Owen County's Courtney Waldrop stepped to the line and hit 1 of 2 free throws to give the Lady Rebels a 4-point lead. On Henry County's next possession Cheyenne Clark hit 1 of 2 free throws to bring the margin back to 3 at 1:20 to go.

But Clark's free throw would be the last of the Lady Cats' scoring for the night. They continued to battle and foul to stop the clock. Gayheart finished the game off by hitting 3 of 4 free throws down the stretch and the Lady Rebels hit two more to make the final score 41-33.

"We did a good job defensively all night," Gilley said. "Our kids played with such resolve. They just wouldn't give in. At the end when it was 35-32, they spread the floor and made us chase them. It was hard to deny Gayheart the ball in that situation. She was region player of the year. We held her all night until the end when she showed why she was regional player of the year by controlling the game down the stretch and hitting her free throws."

For the two Henry County seniors, Clifford and Setters, it was a heartbreaking end to a surprising season as they led their very young and inexperienced teammates to 12 victories.

"The two seniors have done such a good job all year," Gilley said. "They were put in a tough situation from day one. We lost so many players from last year. We were so young, with so little experience that, especially early in the year, everything was on their shoulders. They did a great job in every basketball situation for us, but they are even better people than they are basketball players."

Clifford led Henry's scoring with 10 points, and was followed by Setters with 9. Clark had 6 points, Payton 4, Coomes and Kourtney Current rounded out the scoring with 2 points each.

Clifford and Setters also were named to the All-Tournament team.

made the score 11-10 in favor of Gallatin. But Jeffries' picked up his second foul with 2:17 remaining and the Cats began to struggle to contain the penetration of Gallatin County's own scrappy star point guard, Travis Davis.

Davis managed only two points in the first quarter, but his penetration and passing led to easy baskets for his teammates as Gallatin County finished the first quarter up 17-13.

The trend continued in the second quarter as the Cats struggled to stop Gallatin without Jeffries. Gallatin scored 5 of the first 6 points of the quarter to take an 8-point lead at 22-14 with 6:23 remaining.

After a Hartlage layup cut the lead to 6, Gallatin County hit the second of three 3-pointers that they would get in the quarter to go on top 25-16 at the 5:35 mark. Both teams then went into a scoring drought for about a minute and a half. At that point, Coach Enoch Welch rolled the dice and put Jeffries back on the floor.

It paid immediate dividends as Jeffries scored in the paint with 3:57 on the clock. After another Hartlage layup made it 25-20, Gallatin scored in the paint to push the lead back to 7 with 2:45 remaining.

The teams continued to trade baskets until Davis hit a big 3-point shot with 59 seconds to go. Hartlage, answered with a tough runner in the lane at 19 seconds to close out the scoring for the half. The teams went to the locker room with Gallatin up 32-24. Hartlage had 9 of Henry's 11 points in the quarter while Davis and Zak Brown did most of the damage for Gallatin, scoring a combined 13 points.

The third quarter belonged to Henry County as they held Davis to just 2 points. Meanwhile, Henry got contributions from five players including two big 3-pointers from Hartlage and Sailings.

Sailings' 3-pointer at 6:01 answered a Gallatin 3 that had extended the lead to 37-26. After another scoring drought by both teams, Austin Dunn scored on a nice baseline drive and was fouled. He hit the free throw to complete the old-fashioned 3-point play and later was followed by Hartlage, who hit a 3 to cut the lead to four points with 1:46 remaining. After a Gallatin layup put the lead back to 6 points, Jared Payton had an important put back at the buzzer to make it 43-39 going into the final quarter.

After Gallatin scored to open the fourth quarter, Henry patiently worked the ball for an open shot. The shot missed its mark, but Jeffries hauled in the offensive rebound and kicked it out to Hartlage for a critical 23-foot, 3-point shot that reduced the margin to 3 points and whipped the Henry County crowd into a frenzy.

But Gallatin did not win 21 games this year by folding when the pressure was on. They responded with a 15-footer off a kick out rebound from a missed free throw at the 5:32 mark to go back up by 5. After a Henry County miss, Gallatin came down and penetrated once again but this time Sailings was there to take a charge and Henry had the ball back.

The Cats could not capitalize on the big defensive play and after a miss, Gallatin County's Brown hit another big 3-pointer to kick off a 3-point shooting contest and extend the lead back to eight points at 50-42 with 4:15 remaining.

Henry County answered on the next play with Dunn hitting a 3-pointer on a kick-out assist by Jeffries. At 2:45 Kristian Morgan answered for Gallatin with another 3-pointer to extend the lead back to eight points.

Gallatin County tried to press Henry County but the Cats were able to break the press easily and Jeffries hit a put back off a missed Dunn layup to make the score 53-47. The veterans from Warsaw then went into their spread offense to milk the clock. Gallatin ran 1:12 off the clock and got a good look at the basket but missed.

Henry County had to foul with 1:11 remaining, and Gallatin hit 1-of-2 free throws before the Cats stormed down the floor to score on a Dunn layup with 58 seconds remaining.

The Cats stopped the clock with another foul, sending Davis to the line again. Davis hit both shots to put Gallatin up 56-49 with 53 seconds remaining.

Those final 53 seconds were chaotic as the Henry County boys fought desperately to extend their season.

Sailings hit a free throw at 26 seconds. Hartlage stole the inbounds pass and dishd to Jeffries for the layup.

The Cats had reduced the margin to 4 points with 23 seconds remaining.

Henry again fouled to stop the clock at 20 seconds and Davis calmly sank two more free throws.

Henry came storming down the court looking desperately for a 3-pointer but found the going tough. Finally at 5.2 seconds Sailings fell on the baseline, got up and drained a 3-pointer. Henry fouled before the ball was inbounded after a timeout which meant no time had run off the clock.

Gallatin would be going to the line with only a 3-point lead knowing that the Cats' many 3-point assassins would be capable of getting a good look in the final five seconds.

Davis again hit the free throws to make it a 5-point game. Davis was 6 for 6 at the line with the game on the line.

Hartlage heaved a desperation, nothing-but-net 3-pointer at the buzzer made, making the final score Gallatin 60-Henry 58.

"We missed some key rebounds and some point blank shots that we should have hit," a disappointed Welch said. "On one possession we missed a layup and they came down and hit a 3. Little things like that were the differences in the game."

Hartlage led the Cats in scoring with 22 points, Jeffries had 12, Dunn 10, Sailings 7, Chase Howard 3, while Payton and Austin Young rounded out the scoring with 2 each.

Hartlage and Jeffries also were named to the All-District Tournament Team.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE EMINENCE WASTEWATER TREATMENT PLANT EXPANSION PROJECT

To all interested citizens of the City of Eminence Kentucky
The Kentucky Department for Local Government is accepting application material under the 2012 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program. The City of Eminence intends to seek funding for expansion of the Eminence Wastewater Treatment Plant. The City will hold a public hearing prior to the submission of the application for CDBG funding. The public hearing will be held on Monday, March 12, 2012 at 6:00p.m. at Eminence City Hall located at 5115 South Main Street in Eminence, Kentucky. The purpose of this hearing is to obtain views on housing and community development needs, review proposed activities, review the proposed application, and solicit public comments. Technical assistance is available to help groups representing low and moderate income persons in developing proposals. The public is also invited to attend and comment on such issues as economic and environmental impacts, service areas, alternatives to the project, impacts of historical properties, impacts to any identified endangered species or wetlands, impacts to important farmland and other pertinent issues.

The following information concerning the CDBG program is available for public inspection at the Office of the Mayor during regular business hours:

- Amount of funds available and range of activities that may be undertaken.
- Estimated amounts of funds proposed to be used for activities benefiting persons of low and moderate income.
- Plans for minimizing displacement of persons as a result of activities associated with CDBG funds and plans for providing assistance to those persons to be actually displaced as a result of CDBG-funded activities, if applicable.
- Records regarding the past use of CDBG funds.
- A summary of other important program requirements.

A copy of the CDBG preapplication material will be on file at the Mayor's office for citizens' review and comment during regular business hours from February 29, 2012 through March 12, 2012.

Discrimination Clause

The City of Eminence does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, religion or disability, and provides, upon request, reasonable accommodation, including auxiliary aids and services, to afford an individual with a disability an equal opportunity to participate in all services, programs and activities. Any persons requiring special needs assistance should contact the Office of the Mayor at 502-845-4159 at least 48 hours prior to the meeting.
